

Today's TV With Sharon Lougher & Larushka Ivan-Zadeh

Pick Of The Day Hot In Cleveland Sky Living, 8.30pm

This loud, inoffensive sitcom, filmed in front of an irritatingly hysterical live studio audience, feels a bit dated but it is at least mildly amusing. Frasier's resident Brit, Jane Leeves, stars as one of a trio of vapid, past-their-prime entertainment industry veterans (all women, natch), brought back down to earth when their LA plane to Paris gets diverted to Cleveland – a place where 'everyone eats and no one's ashamed'.

SL

Hot In Cleveland, Sky Living, 8.30pm

True Stories: War Child More4, 10pm

The human cost of war is brought into sharp focus in this haunting documentary from Bafta Award-winner Jezza Neumann. There's no voice-over, just Palestinian children describing the horror of Operation Cast Lead, Israel's 2008/9 assault on Gaza. One boy who saw his father and brother shot dead in front of him says: 'I have started to hate everyone: in the past, I used to love people.' Yet another young life blighted by sadness and anger.

SL

Nuns Aloud BBC1, 11.20pm

In 2008 Decca scored a hit record with a group of Austrian monks singing Gregorian chants. Can lightning strike twice, with a selection of nuns? Record executives Oliver Harrop and Tom Lewis scour the globe for the most heavenly nun voices – but when they find them, they also have to persuade their owners to swap solitude for a media frenzy.

SL

Film Of The Day The War Of The Roses

Film4, 9pm

Don't be misled by the title, this is not some dusty old English historical drama. In this wickedly funny black comedy the Roses are Michael Douglas and Kathleen Turner, a warring married couple each determined not to give an inch, or an ornament, when it comes to divorce settlement – as their flabbergasted lawyer (Danny DeVito) witnesses.

LI-Z

